For many nurses, work is more than just a career, it is an opportunity to make a difference in people's lives. The trick for nurses is to not let commitment to your profession bump into the needs of your own life!

If you find yourself concerned about your workload, your ability to choose your shift assignments, the need to have a flexible work schedule to meet the demands of your personal life...or if you are just looking for a little more "me" time, you should consider a career as an agency nurse. Our report gives you some food for thought, and insight into the career life of an agency nurse.

Since 1989, Criticore has been a Southeast Michigan leader in providing nursing staff to area facilities. We actively look for nurses with the background and skills to excel at agency nursing, and who desire the flexibility and earning potential agency nursing can offer.
